KWANGTUNG NOTES.

As a prelude to taking steps to scatter the brigands in the Shun Tak district, the Deputy Lieutenant-General recently sent one of his subordinates to the house of one of the gentry, named Lo Yik-kung, in order to ascertain from him the names of as many suspects as possible before attempts were made to discover the whereabouts of the robbers. Mr. Lo's dilemma was serious enough, as the house proved. If he refused to give the names, he would be suspected by the officials of being in collusion with the robbers, as some of the gentry are said to be, while if he supplied names, and the fact became known, the robbers would have their revenge, come what might. This latter possibility is exactly what happened. How it came about that the brigands knew what had been done so quickly cannot be known. But the same evening about nine o'clock, when he was sitting in his room, some of these men entered his house. They at once seized Mr. Lo and flung him to the ground. He pleaded piteously for his life. He offered the scoundrels a thousand dollars ransom, and presently increased the amount to several thousand dollars, but his appeals were addressed to deaf ears. He then pleaded for opium, that at least he might have a painless death, and have the honour of committing suicide. This also was denied him. He was then bound with cords and carried in the dead of night into the country outside his village, and there, in the road, murdered in cold blood. But this was not the worst. When they had murdered the man, they proceeded to cut his body into pieces and left it in the road that it might be a warning to all who might, in the future, be inclined to turn traitor and reveal matters to the officials.

A BIG ROBBERY.

An extensive robbery took place in the middle of the day recently in one of the well-known streets of Canton. A man of good family named Tang hegan, accompanied by a woman of ill-fame, whom he met at one of the new houses which have been built upon the bund in Canton. He purchased her from the old hag who owned the place for four thousand dollars, but was afraid to take her to his own house and so hired another house and there he lodged. Presently, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, some one was heard knocking at the door. It appeared to be a woman's voice which spoke, and it was announced that the speaker had brought a present of liquor. When the door was opened, three men slipped in armed with revolvers. They of course, had everything their own way. First of all they opened a small safe and took out $500 in Hongkong notes. They also tore the rings and the ear-rings from the unfortunate concubine. Strange to say, though they searched the place, some three thousand taels, which were hidden away in notes in an old basket, escaped their eyes. But they carried off an immense booty in the way of jade and gold ornaments. It is assumed that a servant girl who had recently left the place had given the robbers some account of its wealth and the habits of those who lived there. The man was asleep when the attack was made. No arrest have been made.

SUSPECTED REVOLUTIONARIES.

Early in the morning of the twentieth of the Chinese month, seven men were arrested in a hotel connected with one of the schools in Sin Tu street in Canton. Of the seven four were dressed in foreign-made clothes, and of course, had discarded their queues. They were tracked to their place of residence by spies, who recognised one or two of them outside the eastern gate and closely followed them to their lodgings. When the officials arrested the men, the latter were at once taken to Dutch Ferry, in order to be examined that something might be discovered in regard to their business and relatives. It is said that the officials treated them with marked leniency, hoping by so doing to elicit something by which others might be implicated. A special testing boat, costing four dollars per day, was hired for them and in this boat they were held in custody. Meanwhile, nothing has transpired from their examination, inasmuch as they have not seen fit to say anything either about themselves or others. As far as is known, they have been living in the lodgings where they were arrested for about a month and generally in the evenings they have called in blind singing girls and spent the time in singing and music. What will happen to them is as yet unknown.

STRANGE WEATHER AT AMOY.

Waiting under date of the 18th inst. our Amoy correspondent says:—
Everybody is talking about the weather, both Chinese and foreigners, and very few seem to know what has really happened. Last Friday evening the barometer commenced to drop, with a N.E. wind blowing fresh. All Saturday it dropped, and the wind was increasing all day, but the sun became really strong. Sunday and Monday were full of scares, as the signals indicated a typhoon south of Pescadores, travelling N., which meant it must come right up the Formosa Channel. All the steamers in port anchored outside on Sunday night, as the glass was dangerously low—29.45 (Custom House) at 6 p.m. However, the wind was never much more than a breeze. Monday evening, the sky looked as if a blow would surely come upon us that night, and everything was made snug, the Chinese especially being fearful, anchoring their boats in secluded and sheltered bays. The night passed uneventfully, the wind coming from the west, and later S.W., showing that the centre of the disturbance had passed. This was verified by the signals, hoisted in the morning "Off Ock, sea, travelling North." The barometer was fairly steady all Monday and not until Tuesday a.m. did any rise take place. There were eight ships anchored in the bay for two days, but they all left on Tuesday at day-light. The barometer has read about 29.54 all to-day, with a slowly rising tendency. The wind is S.S.W., fresh, and bringing with it plenty of clouds. The heat on Saturday, Sunday and Monday was great. Temperature of 96° and 98°, were registered in several places. The "oldest inhabitant" was, it is alleged, heard to remark that Sunday, July 16th, was the hottest day and night known in Amoy for 10 years. It certainly was stifling.

The idea is that we have passed through a "depression" which has travelled from south of Formosa, right up the Channel to Shanghai, and that this depression never developed into a typhoon as all is caused no rain or wind to speak of, and its centre must have passed within 80 miles of Amoy. That the circumstances puzzled the skippers of about 10 steamers, who seemed to have little idea of what was likely to happen, makes one hesitate to offer any explanation. It would surely have been foolhardy to proceed to sea, with the barometer reading 29.30 to 29.40, and the only thing to do was to wait and watch. The Chinese fishing population are still anxious, and even to-night have kept tight. No fish can be had, as the boats have not been out for two days. From telegrams received to-day, another typhoon has commenced its journey, and witnesses affirm that it is more than likely it will find its way up the Channel, driven by the S.W. monsoon. We shall soon know anyway, as it is travelling quickly.

The Haikang, due from Foochow on Monday, has made no appearance so far, neither have the two Japanese boats to and from Tamsui.

CHEMICAL SNOW FOR LEPROSY.

A message from Honolulu states that a cure for leprosy is claimed by a doctor who has been experimenting there with the application of carbon dioxide snow, a substance resembling yellow ice-cream, formed by compressing carbon dioxide gas into a solid form. Dr. Ashburton Thompson, President of the Board of Health, Australia, who has charge of the Little Bay lazarette, states that the same method has been tried by means of the X-rays. These "burn the flesh and mortify it, while the intense cold of the carbon dioxide snow does the same thing; the flesh being acted upon by the heat of the X-rays in the same way that the other does at 110° degrees below zero, this being a convenient form in which to apply extreme cold.

"Solidified carbonic acid acts caustically," he said, "and might be suitably used for destroying spots of disease. That, however, is different from curing the disease. If, however, in the course of the mortification that would follow on the application of intense cold the bacilli themselves were destroyed, it is possible that a favourable constitutional effect might be produced, which might be towards cure. The same thing has been done with X-rays. The results, however, were too feeble and too variable for any reliance to be placed upon them. On the whole, I do not think very much of the statement."

AFFAIRS IN PORTUGAL.

A correspondent sends us the following—

Your issue of Monday last gives us a New York message dated 3rd July saying "that the monarchists in Portugal have already collected several thousands of adherents and have arranged for the purchase of guns and rifles." They declare that they will obtain 40,000 troops when necessary from the Portuguese Army to support King Manuel. I cannot question the accuracy of the above, but it may interest your readers to know that carloads of arms and ammunition have since been seized and that the defections of army units from the Republican side is on the increase. It is even stated that the monarchists had already enlisted the sympathies of the Navy to the extent of having added a war vessel to their assets when the complete miscarried last month. "Monarchist" is not quite the word, for the object of the leading spirits of the recent move was not, in the present instance, so much to re-seat King Manuel forthwith on the throne as to bring about certain changes and reforms in the existing administration.

In Henrique de Paiva Coocero, an outstanding figure in the abiding agitation whom we may safely name, we find the quintessence of the spirit which is actuating the public-minded segment of the anti-Republican party, while it is only to be expected that the clerical and other factions who have little cause to love the new regime will chip in as a matter of course. Paiva Coocero was a Captain in the Army under the King, a prominent personality who filled diverse important posts in the Colonies and at Home. Those who have not yet heard of him may turn up with interest the back numbers of the Times or of any leading London paper of the last four months. Earnest, outspoken and every inch a patriot, Sans peur et sans reproche would suit him to a "T." He it was who broke his sword in the teeth of the Republican Government and declared himself for the King when the Monarchy came to grief. But he was too valuable a factor in the security and welfare of the nation to be wantonly overlooked. In reply to the overtures of the Republican Government who tried by every conceivable device to wheedle him to their side, Paiva Coocero openly avowed his loyalty and devotion to the Motherland. Under whatever guise the Administration was cloaked "Kingdom or Republic," he said "my life is at the service of my country and of my compatriots. Let the individual opinion of every soul in the realm be polled for. If the majority of the population is for the Republic—I am yours." But the poll was never taken and Paiva Coocero was shortly after banished the land. In Spain an ineffectual attempt was made on his life. It is conjectured how far his eloquent manifesto to the Army next tipped the scales in his favour, but both within and without the confines of Portugal the agitation grew and the plot was verging to a head when a mere case of mistaken identity nipped the attempt on the very eve of a general upheaval.

Gaspar alleges the following incident. A certain retired General chanced upon a member of the Carbonari who bore a striking resemblance to a medical friend of his and a co-plotter, whom he had not met for a good while. Under a deluded impression the general touched upon the topic which was then uppermost in his mind and it may be assumed that his interlocutor who naturally had his weather-eye on the qui vive was in no way chary of improving upon the accident and to draw the general out to "pump him dry" in fact. And this is how Act I. turned out a fiasco and the identity of the dramatic personae was divulged with the result that several well-known figures falling from the best and wealthiest families in Portugal are to-day in durance vile.

IMPERIAL UNION.

WITHIN recent years a large number of organisations have been formed in England for the spread of Imperial ideas. One of the latest of these is the Imperial Mission, whose first annual report has just been issued. This organization, of which the Duke of Argyll is Hon. President, was formed in February, 1910, for the purpose of advocating Imperial Union, and of familiarizing the people of the United Kingdom in particular with Imperial problems. Its motto is "Let Us Be One," and the objects of the Mission are:—(1), To promote in every possible way closer organic Imperial Unity; (2), to place before the people of the Empire the benefits of Imperial solidarity in commerce and defence; (3), to show the people of the Mother Country that if she decided to buy her imported food within the Empire, the Overseas Dominions could supply all her wants; (4), to show the advantages of promoting Inter-Imperial Trade to the wage-earners of the Empire; (5), to endeavour by every means to direct the tide of emigration to the Overseas Dominions of the Empire rather than to foreign countries. It is contended that the above are matters which should be understood by the people of the United Kingdom, and, in order to further the work of education, the Imperial Pioneers, as the speakers of the Mission are termed, address audiences on this policy and welcome aid from sympathisers, to whatever party they belong.

The Imperial Mission claims to be entirely independent of party and essentially Imperial in its conception, and in order to maintain this independent character the discussion of purely domestic questions is carefully avoided. The speakers attached to the Mission have an intimate and practical knowledge of the social and commercial conditions of their respective States, and are able, therefore, not only to interest and instruct, but to speak of what they know with a force that carries conviction. During the General Election campaign of December, 1910, some 150 meetings were addressed by Imperial Pioneers. Arrangements are now being made for a very extensive lantern lecture campaign throughout the country during the coming autumn and winter, as it has been found that this form of propaganda is most effective from an educational standpoint. Arrangements are also being made to secure the additional speakers from Canada and elsewhere, and to produce suitable literature in the form of leaflets and pamphlets. In order, however, to still further the work of the Mission in this respect, the Committee is appealing to the many thousands in the United Kingdom and Greater Britain, who appreciate the urgent necessity for the practical union of the Empire, to help on the work of Imperial Education by giving the Mission their generous support. Though a remarkable change in public opinion in regard to Imperial affairs has been very noticeable in the United Kingdom during the last two or three years, there is, unfortunately, a comparatively large section of the people of the Mother Country who do not appreciate the true significance of the great self-governing Dominions, neither do they realize the equality and inter-dependence of the component parts of the British Empire. The Overseas Dominions, which, till quite recently, we have been in the habit of referring to as "the Colonies," are no longer dependencies of the Mother Country, but nations possessed of enormous possibilities, and, whilst intensely loyal to the Empire as a whole, by no means lose sight of their individual nationality. It is therefore to enable the Imperial Mission to still further the very necessary work of education that the Committee has decided to ask for the support of those who have not already contributed to its funds.

We observe in the report a paragraph stating that active work is being undertaken by the Overseas branches of the Mission, and that efforts are being made to establish branches where they do not already exist. In view of the altogether praiseworthy objects of the Mission, it is a matter for regret that Hongkong possesses no branch. But perhaps this is no great loss to the Mission, for—and we regret to say it—there does not appear to be sufficient public spirit or pride of Empire in the Colony to establish on a sound or permanent basis offshoots of organisations of this type. The more shame to the Colony; but it is so, without a doubt. The Navy League is supposed to be represented here, but who ever hears of a gathering under its auspices? And only a few weeks since, somewhat frantic but unsuccessful efforts were made to float a living branch of the Overseas Club. When will Hongkong rouse itself out of its lethargy, and take a live and practical interest in matters of Empire?

Then he went to look at the shops windows and, while his attention was taken by some articles in a shop in Hollywood Road, he forgot all about the basket and its contents which he had meanwhile placed on the ground. Later, when he remembered it, he found that they were missing.

THE LATE MR P. EDULJI KHAMBATTA.

An announcement in our last night's issue that Mr P. Edulji Khambatta, a prominent member of the Colony, had died, has been a source of regret to many. Mr P. Edulji was born in Bombay on the 29th May, 1832, so that he was just entering the age of eighty years when death called upon him. During his school and college career he had greatly distinguished himself, and in the early days had the honour of being a West Scholar of the Euphrasian Institution of Bombay, which in later years developed into the present Euphrasian School and the Euphrasian College. After completing his College education, Mr Khambatta joined one of the many educational institutions in Bombay as a class teacher, while for many years he continued to work as a private tutor in several rich families. One of the headmen of these families, appreciating his high qualities, sent him to China as an assistant in his branch office. Many anecdotes the deceased used to relate of his early adventures when the voyage from India to China had to be undertaken and accomplished in this old ship of 1854. He left Bombay on June 10th, 1854, in the ship, which reached Whampoa on August 16th, 1855. For some time he worked as an assistant in the P. & O. Co.'s office. Later on he joined the now defunct firm of Messrs. Tate & Co., and was for some time manager of their local branch. Having acquired sufficient knowledge of the Chinese and their markets, he decided to work in an independent capacity as a broker in this business with several well-established firms, notably Messrs. K. B. Pabany, Messrs. P. & Co., and others. It was during his only career in this Colony that he died, and he left behind him a large family. He was a man of high character, and his death is a great loss to the Colony. He was a man of high character, and his death is a great loss to the Colony.

He left Bombay on June 10th, 1854, in the ship, which reached Whampoa on August 16th, 1855. For some time he worked as an assistant in the P. & O. Co.'s office. Later on he joined the now defunct firm of Messrs. Tate & Co., and was for some time manager of their local branch. Having acquired sufficient knowledge of the Chinese and their markets, he decided to work in an independent capacity as a broker in this business with several well-established firms, notably Messrs. K. B. Pabany, Messrs. P. & Co., and others. It was during his only career in this Colony that he died, and he left behind him a large family. He was a man of high character, and his death is a great loss to the Colony.

Mr P. Edulji was born in Bombay on the 29th May, 1832, so that he was just entering the age of eighty years when death called upon him. During his school and college career he had greatly distinguished himself, and in the early days had the honour of being a West Scholar of the Euphrasian Institution of Bombay, which in later years developed into the present Euphrasian School and the Euphrasian College. After completing his College education, Mr Khambatta joined one of the many educational institutions in Bombay as a class teacher, while for many years he continued to work as a private tutor in several rich families. One of the headmen of these families, appreciating his high qualities, sent him to China as an assistant in his branch office. Many anecdotes the deceased used to relate of his early adventures when the voyage from India to China had to be undertaken and accomplished in this old ship of 1854. ## COLONIAL ESTIMATE.

DEBATE ON EAST AFRICAN AFFAIRS.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, July 22.

During the debate on the Colonial Estimates Sir Clement Hill urged the adoption of a more liberal Land Ordinance in East Africa.

Mr Ramsey MacDonald denounced the removal of the northern Massi.

The Right Hon. Mr L. Harcourt, in the course of a lengthy speech, defended the removal of the northern Massi and emphasised the safeguards imposed. He was convinced that their removal was an advantage to the Massi themselves, to other tribes, to the Protectorate itself, and made for good government and the progress of civilisation.

Referring to the acquittal of the Hon. Mr G. Cole (son of Lord Eschikillan) on a charge of shooting a native, he said if it was found that trial by jury in East Africa led to constant miscarriage of justice, he should consider taking steps to prevent it.

With regard to land tenure in East Africa, Lord Kitchener had thought the terms so good that he had recently become a leaseholder there. Mr Harcourt contended that the Government, while providing sufficiently for the rapid development of the land system, was securing for itself a fair but small return for the future.

THE POLITICAL CRISIS.

CABINET CONFERS.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, July 22.

The Cabinet has considered the political situation, following a conference between Mr Asquith and the Master of Elibank.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS.

King to Act on Premier's Advice.

London, July 22.

Lord Lansdowne held a meeting of his supporters at Lansdowne House last night, at which there was an attendance of some 150 politicians.

The meeting was private, but it is understood that the leaders deprecated the carrying out of extreme measures.

A letter from Mr Asquith to Mr Balfour was read, in which the Premier stated that he thought it only courteous and right to let Mr Balfour know that the Government was unable to accept the Lords' amendments, and, if necessary he should advise His Majesty the King to exercise his prerogative in order to secure the passing of the Bill into law substantially as it left the House of Commons. His Majesty, the Premier added, had signified that he would consider it is duty to act on that advice.

The meeting did not arrive at any decision.

The Unionists previously met at Mr Balfour's residence, the attendance including Lord Lansdowne, Lord Selborne, Lord Salisbury, Mr George Wyndham and Mr Bonar Law.

LUTON BYE-ELECTION.

LIBERALS HOLD THE SEAT.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)
London, July 22.

A bye-election at Luton has resulted as follows:—

Mr Cecil Harmsworth (L) 7,619

Mr J. O. Hickman (C) 7,006

Liberal majority 613

(Note: At the General Election the Liberal majority was 978, the poll being:—Asquith (L) 7,501; Harmsworth (C) 6,523. Mr Cecil Harmsworth was an Liberal M.P. for Droitwich from 1906 to 1910.—Ed. C.M.)

BOXING AT THE HIPPODROME.

In the boxing tournament last night

Samuel Tower, of Submarine 37, drew a bye, while Cpl. Scruton, R.O.Y.L.I., beat Ganner Mac Gies for three well-contested bouts. The final to night between Scruton and Tower should create considerable interest, as the men are well watched and both are hard fighters. At the conclusion of the contest Mr Brackwell presented the trophies.

On the occasion of the Fourth of July celebrations the Shanghai Baseball Club representatives went under a tree from the U.S.S. Helen, by two runs to one after one of the most closely contested games of the season. A second light between the same teams was played off on the following Saturday for the Shanghai members were unable to deal out revenge and the game ended in a decided victory for the men from the workshop of the sun to ten.

HEAD ONE MASS OF RUNNING ECZEMA

Took Every Hair Off. A Pitiful Sight. Kept Someone Night and Day to Prevent His Scratching. After Second Application of Cuticura Ointment, Itching Stopped.

Now Has Lovely Skin and Hair. Thanks to Cuticura Remedies.

"I have much pleasure in enclosing a photograph of my baby by which you will see that the eczema has been cured. When the eczema first appeared on my baby's head and neck, it was very bad. I tried many remedies, but nothing did any good. I then tried Cuticura Ointment, and after the second application the itching stopped. The eczema disappeared, and my baby now has a lovely skin and hair. I am very grateful to you for the Cuticura Remedies." Mrs. J. M. Smith, London, N.W.

From scratching himself and making a noise, the doctor attended him for about three weeks and gave him medicine and ointment which did him no good. Then we turned to Cuticura Ointment. After the second application the itching stopped. He made no further attempts to scratch, and a beautiful head of hair grew on his scalp. He is now a healthy, happy baby. I am very grateful to you for the Cuticura Remedies." Mrs. J. M. Smith, London, N.W.
